Frank Peterson Talks To P. T. A.

The Parent Teachers Association of Bethel held its monthly meeting in the William Bingham Gymnasium on Monday evening, January 11.

The meeting opened with the following group of musical selections presented by pupils of the Grammar School.

Bohemian March Viola Ensemble composed of the Misses Ida Lee Clough, Muriel Hall, Lillian Leighton accompanied by Miss Barbara Luxton

Folk Dance--Chimes of Dunkirk Fifth Grade Pupils

Songs--Bendemeer's Stream, Jacky Frost, Girls Chorus from 6th and 7th Grades

Rose Petals. Viola Ensemble accompanied by Miss Mary Jodrey. The organization was very fortunate to have as guest speaker of the evening, Frank Peterson, of Fryeburg, who has spent many years travelling in various parts of the world.

Mr. Peterson spoke concerning different types of hobbies, enlarging upon that of collecting buttons, in which he is especially interested. Among his button collection Mr. Peterson now owns several hundred thousand varieties, some of which were displayed during the evening. Concerning these the speaker related many interesting facts and stories.

Some of these buttons are of great value, having come from many different parts of the world, and having been collected under very unusual circumstances.

Besides being interested in collecting buttons, Mr. Peterson is also an authority on gems and minerals.

COUNTY ASSOCIATIONS TO FURTHER CONSERVATION ACT

County agricultural conservation associations will be formed in Maine this year. A. K. Gardner, specialist in soil conservation, said last week in the first of a series of 20 radio talks to be given by state committees, county agents, and others, explaining the 1937 conservation program.

The associations will be created solely to carry out the provisions of the agricultural act, he declared. Associations were organized in most sections of the country last year, but not in the Northeast.

County agents and county committees will explain the 1937 program at community meetings of farmers beginning January 18. At these meetings, farmers may sign applications to participate in the program, and a community committee of three will be elected. The chairman of the committee becomes a director of the county association and is one of those to elect the county committee.

Only in Aroostook, Penobscot, Piscataquis, Somerset and Waldo counties will farmers be eligible for diversion payments in 1937. Even in these counties, eligibility for diversion payments is limited by certain restrictions. Farmers in all counties will be eligible to receive soil building payments as in 1936, and the farm allowance for such payments has been increased.

Mrs. H. C. Rowe has returned from Boston after spending several days there with Mr. Rowe.

Celebrates 90th Birthday

Mary Jane Capen, a life long resident of Bethel, celebrated her 90th birthday on January 6th. Her immediate family consists of four daughters, seven grandchildren and five great grandchildren. She received almost 150 cards, letters and gifts from her many friends. She is known to them all as Mary Jane, a person intensely interested in all that is happening in the world from prize fights broadcast over the radio to the latest fashions in dresses and always has a witty answer even for the most modern of her grandchildren.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Blake announce the engagement of their daughter, Irene, to Ray Everett Cotton, Jr., son of Ray Everett Cotton and Ann Gibbs Cotton, Mechanic Falls.

Birthday Surprise Party

A happy group of young people met at the home of Alfred Lovejoy, West Bethel, Saturday evening, Jan. 2, to surprise him on his 18th birthday. The plans for the affair had been kept a secret and Alfred was taken completely unawares. There were 14 young people present who spent a jolly evening playing Monopoly and other games.

A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Lovejoy and Alfred was presented with two birthday cakes which he cut. These contained the usual symbols which caused much merriment when they were found. The party broke up at 11 o'clock with many good wishes for this and future birthdays.

Gould Basketeers Badly Beaten

Gould Academy suffered its worst defeat in nine years Tuesday night when it went down to a 40-12 beating. The Gould basketeers were helpless against the bigger Mechanic Falls team on their small floor.

Keene, flashy center of the winners again led the attack with 19 points. With two men guarding him most of the evening he still was able to get away for shot after shot.

For the locals Parker Brown did a fine job on the defense. The offense for the Bethel outfit, however, was entirely smothered by Mechanic's zone defense on their small floor.

West Paris Man Killed in Crash

Howard L. McKee of West Paris was fatally injured Tuesday night when a truck in which he was riding with Joseph T. Bryant of South Woodstock crashed into a telephone pole near the home of Lauri Immonen. It is said that the wheels of another car touched the truck wheels in passing, causing the truck to swerve across the road. McKee was thrown out and, it is believed, his head struck the pole. His death was caused by multiple skull fractures. According to neighbors the truck was not going over 25 miles an hour.

When officers arrived Bryant had left the scene. After a four hour search he was located at his home. He was cut about the nose and ears and appeared to be suffering from shock. He was taken to the jail to await arraignment in the Norway Municipal Court.

Double Header Basketball Feature Friday

Two excellent games are on the docket for Bethel fans on Friday when the Bryant Pond quintet meets the Gould second team and Oxford High Schools' champions play the varsity in a Western Maine Conference game. The Oxford team comes highly regarded as they have played fine ball against both Mechanic Falls and South Paris losing both games, each by the slim margin of one basket.

Gould lost a one sided game to Mechanic Falls last Tuesday but they were on a small floor and against a bigger team. Against Oxford, playing on the Academy floor, they should be able to put up a better battle, especially should they come out of a seeming slump in form. The varsity game will start at 8:15.

Good Preliminary

The preliminary game should prove a thriller as Bryant Pond has a fine team. They defeated Andover 45-13 and played "bang-up" basketball against Bliss College, Lewiston, to lose in the final quarter by a small margin. The following morning will see action for Gould in this battle: Don Brown, Rodney Howe, Murray Thurston, Rodney Wentzell, Frank Littlehale, Dick Crockett, Carl Tucker, Harold Young, Sidney Howe.

In the first game Bob Browne will do the officiating, as he has already refereed a number of games for the Bryant Pond coach, Coach "Buck" Spinks of Bates College will call them in the main event.

Gerrard S. Williams, has accepted the appointment as local Scoutmaster and will meet all boys interested in Scouting at the Legion Rooms Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

Musical Show For Benefit Of The Bethel Band

A picture of life along the Mississippi at the close of the nineteenth century is the inspiration for the plot and the background for the musical entertainment to be presented January 21 and 22. It is called "Life Aboard the Southern Belle" and the personnel of the show, captain and guest stars will guarantee the excellence of the show.

Mr. Harry Cohen of Rumford with his orchestra will play the overture. Capt. Handy Hawkins, owner of the "Southern Belle," is impersonated by Roy Davis and following the introduction of the troupe the entire cast sings "Here Comes the Showboat." Mrs. Roy Davis plays the part of Samantha, the Captain's spinsterish wife.

A lively number is played by a five piece band made up of some of our best old-time musicians; Mrs. Arthur Herrick, cornet; Mrs. Robert Lord, clarinet; Ralph Young, trombone; Robert Lord, bass horn; and Fritz Tyler, alto horn.

Mrs. Laurence Lord, who as Petunia the ship's cook of parts and color creates comedy with her no-good husband Jasper (Harold Lurvy) will sing "Can't Help Lovin' That Man."

Twenty years ago no musical program was complete without a number by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Herrick. They are as good as ever and have consented to play a saxophone and cornet duet.

Miss Carol Robertson as Fifi Laflour will dance to the tune "Beautiful Lady," in a specialty. There will be plenty of color in the number given by four little pickaninnies, Betty Warren, Betty Smith, Betty Marshall and Mary Lou Chapman.

The male quartet consisting of P. O. Brinck, John Anderson, Earl Davis and Kenneth Brooks and the ladies chorus made up of Mrs. Ralph Berry, Mrs. Custer Quimby, Mrs. Arthur Dudley, Mrs. Henry Godwin, Mrs. P. O. Brinck, Mrs. Harry Lyon, Miss Eugenia Hazelton, Mrs. Robert Lord, Miss Arlene Greenleaf and Mrs. Charles Freeman sing "Deep River."

Mrs. Lee Wentzell as Mimi Lafleur has promised two solo specialties, "A Rendezvous with a Dream" and "Bill." The colored deck hands, Rastus and Sambo, who may be recognized as Charles Freeman and Jesse Guyon engage in a laughable sketch. Another deck hand is James Bryant. Spirited dialogue between Captain and Mrs. Hawkins is interspersed throughout the program.

The romantic interest is upheld by Marguerite, daughter of the Captain, played by Miss Macquerie Hall and Arthur Dudley as Perivictor Jefferson, director, singing in perfect harmony, "Why Do I Love You?" and "You Are My Love."

Miss Ruth Leavengood as Molly Sherman, the leading lady, and Richard Young as Dick Chisholm, leading man maintain their fine reputations throughout and sing together "Believe." The male quartet in burnt cork sings the spiritual "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" and P. O. Brinck, well known baritone, sings "Old Man River."

The closing chorus will be "Way Down Upon the Swannee River." Two hours of entertainment is assured. Tickets are on sale January 16 at Hosserman's Mrs. Ralph Young, local director, is devoting much time to making this entertainment a success for the benefit of the Bethel Band. That project alone bespeaks loyal support.

Rex Robinson was taken to the hospital at Berlin Sunday where he underwent an operation and still remains in a very critical condition. Mrs. Mabel Farrington and Mrs. James Hagg of Locke Mills visited the former's brother A. W. Herrick. Monday Mr. Herrick is confined to his home by injuries sustained by a fall on the ice to a creek on $50,000 Is Allotted Maine By R. A.

Allotments of funds just received from Washington will make $373,000 available in January for rural rehabilitation loans under the Resettlement Administration program in the 11 northeastern states, according to Dorothy M. Beck, regional director. This amount is in addition to $145,000 now on hand.

With mounting demands for such loans to farm families being reported from field supervisors, regional officials decided to release these funds, in addition to commitments already made this month, in order to prepare farm management plans in advance of spring planting.

The new allotments for the states are as follows: Maine, $50,000; New Hampshire, $15,000; Vermont, $35,000; Massachusetts, $35,000; Rhode Island, $15,000; Connecticut, $25,000; New York, $125,000; Pennsylvania, $15,000; Maryland, $20,000; and Delaware, $3,000.

An additional allotment for New Jersey was not made as sufficient funds are now available for January.

ROADSIDE CAGES MAY BE PROHIBITED BY LAW

George J. Stoble, State fish and game commissioner, plans to present a bill to legislature to prohibit the display of wild animals along Maine's highways. A similar measure had been started, it is said, as a result of action by women's clubs in Hancock County since two men were clawed to death by a black bear in captivity at Ellsworth.

4,116 ALREADY ENROLLED IN 4-H CLUBS OF STATE

Enrollment in Maine 4-H clubs for 1937 is well under way, according to Kenneth C. Lovejoy, state club leader with 4,116 boys and girls signed up as of January 1.

This is 29 more than were enrolled on the corresponding late last year. Somerset county, he said, leads the counties without club agents in total enrollment and in membership increase over last year. Two hundred and forty-three were enrolled this year, compared with 164 a year ago. Penobscot, with 607 members, led the counties in total enrollment, followed by Waldo with 433 and Kennebec 379. York with 359 was 146 ahead of last year.

The number of members, by counties, was as follows: Counties without club agents--Somerset 243, Hancock 221, Piscataquis 197, Franklin 187, Washington 116. More and Better Sidewalks—winter and summer
Night Watchman—All the Year
Reinforced Traffic Rules

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Congress, believe it or not, is coming back to life. As it heads into one of the hardest year's work it has ever done, more and more members are becoming aware of their responsibilities.

Back in 1933, when President Roosevelt first took office, there was an emergency Congress labored long and hard, and passed bill after bill. It will labor long and hard again this year, but there is no longer an emergency.

This year Congress will again deal with scores and even hundreds of subjects. In many cases it will only extend, or amend slightly, present laws. But in the last few months many of the Congressmen have learned what it is all about. Whatever the cause, many of them realize that upon them rests the responsibility for doing what is best for all the people.

In retrospect, many members now see that the trend of much legislation enacted in recent years was toward putting everybody on the same plane, regardless of individual ability and talents. Even now, these reawakened members do not object to attempts to raise everybody, but they do object to putting up a ceiling above which nobody could rise.

The Social Security Act, they say, is an example of that kind of legislation. Amendments, however, are in store for it and as experience emphasizes its biggest flaws, it might even, in time, be made workable.

Many Congressmen also are beginning to wonder about the new tax on undistributed corporate earnings. They thought last year that they had hit upon a "fool proof" method of raising money. But now they aren't so sure. They see that the tax is depriving employers of chances to create new jobs, because it puts a penalty tax upon money spent for plant extensions and improvements. To far, the President has not expressed himself as for or against amendments that the tax question will be reopened and if the House does nothing about this Act, the Senate will.

The same will be true of other laws. Members who voted for these laws blindly a few years ago are beginning to have doubts about whether they were wise. They can see the flaws in what they have done.

As one leader put it: "The first thing we know, Congress is again going to be providing its share of the legislative-executive-judicial balance upon which our government is founded." The fact that this leader's job will be harder with Congress really functioning didn't make him any more willing to say that either.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Table, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

During the year just closed, there has been fulfillment of hopes mixed with a number of disappointments in the industrial field. It is true that production and sales indexes are at the highest levels since depression set in. It is also true that various grave problems—notably that of unemployment—are still a long way from solution.

As a result, industry looks forward to 1937 with optimism tinged with worry. It is probable that the most favorable outlook of all is held by the retail trade businesses. Last year's December buying totaled more than $5,000,000,000—compared with $4,600,000,000 in December, 1935, and $2,700,000,000 in December, 1933, which marked the low point. Consequently, seasonal employment last December (extra clerks and office workers in department stores, etc.) was encouragingly high. This was reflected to some extent in the production field. However, payrolls are still abnormally low.

A synopsis of current business taken from authoritative sources follows:

ELECTRIC UTILITIES: During 1936, this industry spent $239,000,000 for new capital equipment. This year it will spend more than $230,000,000, as a result of increasing demand. Principal expenditures will go for expanding generating facilities which will be more than doubled. The political situation is a highly important factor so far as utilities are concerned, and will dictate their budgets and employment to a considerable extent.

AUTOMOBILES: There seems to be almost no limit to the public's appetite for new cars. On the debit side of the ledger is labor troubles which have already hit machine tool and accessory makers and strike now in force against General Motors, as a prelude to John L. Lewis' campaign to unionize the rest of the industry.

CONSTRUCTION: For the past five years, a major building boom has been anticipated. It has not occurred. However, during 1936 construction was at least 34% better than in 1935, with home building 70% ahead. America still faces a considerable housing shortage, and the building industry hopes that 1937 will finally prove to be the year in which Americans will go into the market for new homes, as well as extensive modernization of old homes.

STEEL: Has just closed the third best year in its history, with production the best since 1929. But this industry also is troubled with potential labor difficulties.

RAILROADS: Traffic is good, profits are small. Some executives feel that the ICC's refusal to cancel the emergency surcharges is a serious blow. ICC says, on the other hand, that the emergency is over, that more freight pick-ups will cover the loss. Time can only tell which side is right. In the meantime, the lines are continuing their expansion and betterment programs in both freight and passenger fields.

AIRLINES: Seem to be making a steadily increasing appeal to that part of the traveling public which can afford the higher fares. One line reports a 122 per cent jump in business.

EMPLOYMENT: As mentioned above, is still one of the most serious of our internal problems. Unemployment total is hovering around six or seven millions. Business must make big progress in production before this labor surplus is absorbed. Politics, taxation, labor troubles and technological advance are great obstacles to normal development.

AGRICULTURE: Had the best gross income since 1929 in 1936. Crops were smaller, as a result of drought, but prices were higher in practically all lines.

CHRISTMAS SEAL STORY ON RADIO TONIGHT

The pioneering spirit of Miss Emily P. Russell of Wilmington, Del., in starting the first Christmas Seal sale in this country 30 years ago last December will be commemorated Thursday evening, Jan. 14, at 8 o'clock, when she will be nominated for the Kate Smith award for Distinguished Achievement. The story of Miss Russell's efforts to overcome the indifference of the public to the crying need for funds to fight tuberculosis will be dramatized during the regular Kate Smith program over the Columbia network. The program will include also two other dramatizations of heroic deeds of noteworthy achievements and listeners will be asked to name their choice for a $500 award which is given each week to the one who receives the greatest number of votes. Whether or not Miss Russell is chosen by popular vote for the main award she will receive a check for $100 from Miss Smith. If Miss Russell is chosen as recipient of the $500 award, she will be Miss Smith's guest and make a personal appearance on the program January 21 when she will receive a check and an honorary scroll.

Charles B. Sylvester, M. D., chairman of the Tuberculosis Section of the Maine Public Health Association, said, "We hope all our friends in Maine will listen to the program and will vote for Miss Emily P. Russell whose vision made possible the Christmas Seal sales held annually in every city and town in this state."

Meetings To Explain Soil Conservation Start Jan. 18

Every farmer in Oxford County who wants to know about the Soil Conservation program for 1937 or who has any idea of taking part in it should attend one of the meetings to be held during January and February. At these meetings the program will be explained and farmers will have a chance to make out applications to participate. If they wish to do so later on, this will be the best and perhaps the only opportunity to make out an application. The meetings will be in charge of county committeemen, Edmund C. Smith and R. W. Anderson, and county agent, R. F. Blanchard.

Those who make out applications will not be bound to take any part in the program. They are protected, however, if they wish to do so later. They will also be on the mailing list to receive further information and notices of a second series of meetings starting in March when the practices will be fully explained.

At the first series of meetings, community committeemen and directors in the county conservation association will be elected. After the meetings are completed the directors will meet to elect the county committee.

Following is a schedule of the series of meetings starting January 18. Every farmer who is at all interested cannot afford to miss attending the meeting most convenient for him.

HOW I BECAME A RADIO STAR

By ED WYNN

Say, Graham... you know I was born in Philadelphia, don't you? Yes... My parents liked the Quaker environment and I've been quaking ever since... So... that's where I first felt the old hickory stick across my back when I tried to play hooky from school one day. But I didn't care much about the three R's and would run away regularly. My Ma and Pa wanted me to grow up to be an intelligent young man and go into the family's haberdashery business, but I wanted to be an actor and tip my hat at the audience, not at the curtain. Finally my family gave up and cast me adrift in the world to seek my fortune. They feared the worst.

When I was 16 I was excited when I was invited to the door of a theatrical agent. I was so nervous I must ask me for a 50¢ Varsity Dance instruction. Finally I pulled myself up to my own best straps. I had to be my own boss and support at the time. And the stage doors of vaudeville opened for me. I carried behind them for ten years. That's a career in itself when you're on the five a day circuit.

After that decade of tramping, I got my first real chance in the big time when I did a short sketch in the Ziegfeld Follies of 1914. I appeared with the revue for two years. My jokes were so bad no one laughed at them except myself. The gang had a standing gag around the dressing room—"So one chuckled, but the Wynn howled."

In 1916 stardom came my way for the first time with a featured role in "The Passing Show." Then followed parts in "Over the Top," "Doing the Hot," "Sometime" and "The Shubert Gaits of 1919." In each of these shows I collaborated in the writing.

I wrote the book, lyrics and music, was starred in and owned "Ed Wynn's Carnival," "The Perfect Fool" and "The Grab Bag." As an actor, author, producer, composer, manager and owner, I achieved a distinction which someone recently told me has been equaled by only one person beside me—Al. And that is by my good friend, George M. Cohan. My other shows included "Manhattan Mary," "Simple Simon" and my favorite, "The Laugh Parade." You won't believe this, Graham. During my career I have written more than one hundred songs. In between times I penned two books, "Ed Wynn's Crazy Cross Word Puzzle Book" and "The Philosophy of a Fool." The latter is not to be published until I have passed on, and then it will be bequeathed to my twenty-year-old son, Keenan.

In April, 1932, I was introduced to radio. I met Graham McNamee and Don Voorhees and they are as fine fellows as you'll ever want to know. This is my fifth year on the air, and I can frankly admit I have found more real happiness in bringing funny stories to the young and old of the country via the air waves than in anything else I've ever tried. At a very early age, I was taught the power of laughter and the human need for a sense of humor. Through the medium of the radio, I have been able to share this knowledge with a far greater audience than ever before.

New York World's Fair Site From 9,000 Feet Up

NEW YORK, (Special) —Photography and ingenuity combine to show about how the New York Fair will appear in 1939 to visitors arriving from the west in planes flying at an altitude of one and three-quarters miles. Cameraman made this "shot" from a plane over the New Jersey meadows. Shown in the foreground is the shipping along the Hudson—Manhattan with its towers grouped about the Empire State building (center) which houses present headquarters of the Fair—and in the middle distance the 1,216-acre site of the 1939 International exposition. To the right lies Brooklyn and, beyond, the hinterland of Long Island. At the extreme left, spanning the East river, is the new Triborough bridge over which many of the 50,000,000 visitors expected at the Fair will motor to the convenient parking lots. A photograph of the table model of the Fair has been superimposed on the top left of the air view to show the end of the tented exhibit area, the last been being constructed on Flushing Bay and the houses that will feature the exposition's permanent zone.

Just Larro Chick Builder Larro Egg Mash — and the grains that go with them — that's all you need when you feed the Larro way. They form a program that fills every nutritional requirement of the chick, the growing pullet and the mature hen. And these feeds require no supplements. No cod liver oil, green feed, buttermilk, or other "extras" of any kind.

Another advantage is that no gradual change or "tapering" off is necessary when you change from Larro Chick Builder to Larro Egg Mash. These rations are so "graded" together that you simply discontinue Larro Chick Builder and start feeding Larro Egg Mash.

Modern Navigation

The instrument above is a radio direction finder. Chief Officer Wm. Abbott of the Grace Line Santa Rosa is seen receiving signals from various land stations by means of this instrument. The dial of the instrument is turned until it is receiving a certain station call of the starboard or right side of the port or left side is then turned in at its strongest point. Next the officer takes his chart and draws lines from the two stations in the S. E. at which he received the signals. The position of the ship is where these two lines cross the chart.

MAINE MEETING PLACE

Winter sports held the center of the stage here this week when over fifty representatives of winter sports committees, ski clubs, and communities met here at the invitation of the Maine Development Commission to form a Maine Winter Sports Federation.

It is an undeniable fact that Maine as a whole has lagged far behind the procession in developing snow sports facilities for the thousands who might be induced to come here in the winter time to indulge in skiing, snowshoeing, skating and tobogganing.

The reason for this regrettable situation is, I think, primarily due to the fact that federal help in the cutting of trails and other necessary work has been almost impossible to obtain because Maine has few state or federal lands on which it is legal to employ relief labor.

Now Hampshire, on the other hand, has many state and national park lands which accounts for the emergence of that state as a popular winter playground.

Another reason why Maine has lagged is the fact that previously no central workable organization has been formed which could work for the good of the state as a whole. Members of the Maine Winter Sports Federation believe that it can be instrumental in overcoming these handicaps.

The Federation is composed of nine districts comprising every county in the state.

Each district will have a district director whose duty it will be to organize his area and work with the central body for the common good.

An instance of how the idea will operate is as follows: A district director will call a meeting at which all communities in his area interested in winter sports will be represented. Development of new areas in the district will be discussed. Improvement of existing facilities will be talked over. Carnival dates will be agreed upon so that they will not conflict. Aid of the central body will be invoked whenever needed. A bulletin on snow sports condition will be sent each week to the Maine Development Commission where it will be forwarded for wide publication throughout the state.

The central body, which is composed of the directors, will meet at frequent intervals to discuss matters of common interest and to act concertedly in enlisting the help of various agencies or individuals in furthering the development of the state as a winter sports paradise.

The Federation will also have an advisory board, the members of which will give their services to any community anxious to develop winter sports. This board will assist in the laying out of ski trails and other necessary improvements.

The Federation has already enlisted the aid of the State Park Service, which, in conjunction with the Resettlement Commission hopes to develop winter sports facilities in proposed park lands.

The Camden hills, Mount Blue, Edmunds, and Waterville are some of the localities now under consideration by these organizations. Others will doubtlessly be added from time to time.

A note of warning was injected into the meeting by railroad representatives who cautioned winter sports communities against advertising or publicizing their areas until facilities have been developed equal to those in regions which are now popular with winter sports fans. They also cautioned communities against spending large sums of money in winter sports development unless it was possible to foresee where such expenditures would be justified by future revenue.

This, in my opinion, was the soundest of sound advice. The danger now that we have become winter sports conscious is that we may in our enthusiasm develop unwisely and not well.

The potentialities of Maine as a winter sports paradise are enormous. It would seem that if we can develop our resources soundly and safely that the new revenue which we can attract to the state will be a welcome economic addition.

Celebrated 90th Birthday

The following letter written to her by an old neighbor is a perfect picture of her character:

"Greetings from and to our dear friend Mary Jane Capen. speaks first.

I remember the first time I saw you. I think it was 33 years ago, last summer. You were on Capen Hill rushing across the yard to the clothes line. The wind was blowing the clothes and were you rushing!

Then one day you stopped to speak to and you spoke to me, too, so pleasantly that everything else that day seemed pleasant also.

The next vivid impression was the winter you were so sick with cystitis. We were on our way to Aunt and as someone told me to see you. Of course you were in bed, so thin, so frail, but what spirit and courage your words expressed. (My goodness, you look stronger now than you did then.)

Then I remember the last time you came to see Grandma. You had on a lavender dress with a white collar and was as demure as a doll.

But the most vivid memory is of this last fall, to think you could walk so spryly and think so quickly to say such bright and interesting things.

Now speaks.

I remember you as far back as anyone in my life, because you always were so pleasant.

Together we join in wishing you many happy returns of the day. We both hope and expect to extend our greeting again on your hundredth birthday.

—LINES TO MARY JANE CAPEN ON HER 90TH BIRTHDAY

(Written by her friend Addie Kendall Mason)

Ninety years since you entered life's journey. On a beautiful winter's day. Ninety years you've been and with the sorrowing.

Ninety years you have laughed with the gay.

Ninety years of sunshine and shadow.

On the wonderful road of life; Ninety years, O so filled with duties As maiden, mother and wife.

Never a word of complaining. When sorrow became your guest. You bowed to the master's mandate. Saying, "God doeth all for the best."

For all you've a cheery greeting As you clasp in your dear hand; You have taught us that a home is eternal.

Awaits in that better land.

You've helped us to fight life's battle's.

With a steady, brave good will. And although your years are old, You are helping us onward still. Though the face we love has grown careworn.

And youth's bloom may have faded away. Your lips speak a loving welcome As we come to you each day.

Your hands, outstretched so quickly, Are as dear as in days of old. When they smoothed away our worries.

As our childish troubles we told. And often we think and wonder (Although you will never tell) If those same dear hands haven't sometimes spanked each of us soundly and well.

For we know that we all are willful. And sometimes get a little wild; And once you said in your wisdom "Spare spunks and spoil the child."

So we stand here to bear witness That we are unspooled and true. So no doubt there was many a spanking.

That Mary Jane was witness to.

That's only a gay bit of nonsense That ran right off my pen. And if you think it is naughty O, please, do not spank me again.

That her children shall call her blessed.

We read in the old book true. That is what we are calling you. And may many another milestone be passed in health and cheer.

And hope we shall all be together When your birthday comes next year.

In recent tests made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, peanuts and cottonseed oil were found to be the most satisfactory fats in which to fry potato chips.

Advertising Sells Commodities

Before Thanksgiving this year, progressive food stores of the country carried on an aggressive turkey sales campaign. More turkeys were sold than ever before, and at prices that were attractive to consumer as well as producers.

Sales methods varied somewhat in different localities—but the participating stores seemed to appreciate the value and necessity of newspaper advertising. For example here is an excerpt from the report of one large chain system: "Newspaper advertising was carried in all of the principal metropolitan and rural newspapers in our territory....Before our Thanksgiving demands had been filled there was a decided scarcity of turkeys of the top grade in our market."

Another chain reported: "We have advertised turkey in approximately 250 newspapers this week as well as 750,000 circulars which were distributed to the consuming public's homes. Present indications are that we sold about 30% more turkeys for Thanksgiving this year than a year ago."

Newspapers have been a potent factor in other food sales campaigns—such as the recent beef and veal drive. Similar future campaigns—of which the first will feature grapefruit—are planned.

It is apparent that this is good business all around—for the farmer, for the merchant, for the newspaper and for the consumer.

In the past, some retailers have attempted to eliminate newspaper advertising—and they have usually found that it was the poorest kind of economy. "The paper"—whether it be a daily or weekly—is a fixture of the American home and finds an eager audience.

Food stores—chain or independent—which have not yet joined in special selling campaigns would do well to take a leaf from the book of the stores which have. Pay the farmer a fair price, charge the consumer a fair price, advertise extensively—and consumption of commodities soars.

About one-fifth of the Colorado potato crop is being washed this year, and the washed stock brings a premium of 10 to 25 cents a hundredweight over the unwashed potatoes.

"There is but one spiritual existence,—the Life of which corporeal sense can take no cognizance. We apprehend Life in divine Science only as we live above corporeal sense and correct it. Our proportionate admission of the claims of good or of evil determines the harmony of our existence,—our health, our longevity, and our Christianity" Pages 72:1-2, 167: 6-10).

Chapman Florida Home Described

(From "Little Visits to St. Petersburg Homes" by Lillian Black in the St. Petersburg Times, Jan. 12, 1937.)

Not only is Mrs. W. R. Chapman's winter residence at 2100 Street north attractive because of its substantiality and architecture but also because of the landscaping which adds to its beauty.

For instance, all around the house in the stretch of grass between street and sidewalk are alternate plantings of Washington palms and red hibiscus. Close to the foundations of the house are crotons and poinsettias, and in the rear of the home, back of the age and chauffeur's quarters are Australian pines with bordering trees and tropical plantings, including citrus trees with oranges, grapefruit, lemons, limes and calamondins to eat.

Mrs. Chapman and her home. When looking for a permanent residence last spring, Mrs. Chapman knew her search was a when she found this house, made of hollow tile stucco and out, the exterior coloring of and green blending with the title roof and contrasting pleasing with the red brick steps and tile sidewalks leading to the and side porches. There is a side ventilating system, the house is termite proof and an oil plant or has been installed with radiators in every room.

Roomy and Comfortable
The home is large, comfortable and roomy. The front veranda facing First street north, leads a vestibule, Spanish style, and this vestibule one can enter parlor or living room. The veranda facing Twenty-first street north, looks like a front porch and is one of the most lived-in parts of the entire home. There is a floor, rug covering and wicker furniture. It is a pleasant place which to be—but then, too, is the other veranda as well as rooms which have many windows to let in fresh air and sunshine.

The ceiling of the living room is 12 feet, 3 inches high and has posed rafters of the same finished woodwork found throughout the home. The ceiling of the dining room, opening from the living room through an arched doorway, is 12 feet, 4 inches high.

One of the most pleasant features of the living room is the tapestry brick fireplace extending to the ceiling. An inset above the mantelpiece shows one of the knights of Round Table.

There are seven rooms in house, including the living room, parlor, dining room, three bedrooms, bath and kitchen. The rooms are airy and attractive, with a color scheme of tan and blue, green and white, pink and white. In the other rooms the tan shade predominates, and the walls are all of this color. Woodwork is finished in a tone of green.

Active in Music Circles
Mrs. Chapman, who has been coming to St. Petersburg for the seasons with her daughter, Nellie B. Chapman, is well known throughout the north—particularly in the music circles of New York where she was president of the Rubinstein Club for 25 years. Cause of her musical affiliation she was recently named an honorary member of the local Carillon.

Mrs. Chapman was the wife of William Rogers Chapman, who died in Palm Beach two winters ago. She was a leading musician in the country, conducting the Rubinstein Club for 48 years and the famous Maine festival for 30 years. Mrs. Chapman is writing a biography of her husband, which the entire world would want.
